DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

Claims 1, 6-9, 13-16, and 19 are provisionally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1, 3-4, 8-13, 17, and 20 of copending Application No. 10/580,117. This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Enokizono (Patent No. 5,337,500).

Enokizono teaches a dishwasher having a washing chamber 14 for holding utensils which are washed and dried therein. The drying functions are performed using at least the following parts: a circulation duct 56 (air duct); heat exchanger 68 (condensing apparatus), condensate container 32 (condensed water discharge port), outside air duct 82 (vapor exhaust port), a first fan 72 (condenser fan), a second fan 86 (dryer fan), and a motor 74 which drives both the first fan and second fan together (motor).

Insofar as Applicant's claims for a vapor passage which forms a meander line, it is illustrated in Fig. 1 of Enokizono that the circulation duct 56 forms an upper horizontal path beginning at outlet 48 to first fan assembly 70, then curves downwardly to meet with wavy ridges formed by the heat exchanger 68, then continues down in a straight vertical path towards the bottom 34 of the dishwasher to a second inlet 76, which leads continues horizontally towards the right, vertically upwards, and horizontally towards the left to the second outlet 80. These multiple C-shaped curves formed in the circulation duct of Enokizono reads on a meandering line. Moreover, the curvy ridge-like formation on the heat exchanger 68 of Enokizono reads on Applicant's claims for a "ridge". Finally it is noted that although the second fan 86 (dryer fan) is formed in the path of the air outlet, it fully is capable of functioning as Applicant's dryer fan for "providing suctioning force to suction vapor from inside the tub", since the second fan 86 is fully connected to the dishwashing chamber 14 and since it is driven to help the flow of air in an outwardly direction, the air inside the chamber is thus forced/suctioned outwards by fan 86. It is well settled that the intended use of a claimed apparatus is not germane to the issue of the patentability of the claimed structure. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the claimed use then it meets the claim. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235, 238 (CCPA 1967); In re Otto, 136 USPA 459 (CPA 1963). Although fan 86 is not formed at the immediate outlet of chamber 14, it is still fully capable of forming a vacuum/suction effect by delivering air out of the chamber from the exiting part of the circulation duct 56 since fan 86 drives air out of the dishwasher.

Finally, in Enokizono, a curved, ridged, and straight portion of the circulation duct are formed in sequential order as seen by Examiner's amended Figure 1 of Enokizono below:

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Jacobs (Patent No. 3,068,877) teaches a dishwasher and drying system therein.

Quayle (Patent No. 4,247,158) teaches a dishwasher airflow drying system.

Suzuki et al. (Patent No. 5,076,306) teaches a dish washer with dryer.

Taylor, Jr. et al. (Patent No. 5,660,195) teaches a dishwasher vent system.
